

SALMON RIVER CAMP | Yellowpine, Idaho

The owners originally contacted Edgewood in 2004 after having seen a special Edgewood Home built in Breckenridge, CO. featured in a national magazine. Their wishes were to recreate this home's feel, look, and finish details only with a new custom architectural design that was perfectly suited to their family and their unique site in Idaho.

Testimonial from the Owner:

"Our family long dreamed of a fishing cabin in the back-country. Researching architects and log packages, Brian's Edgewood Log Homes was at the top of the list for two reasons. The first reason was that his designs were reminiscent of classic western lodges also incorporating window elements to capture outside views. The second reason was that Brian's log package approach limited shrinkage while utilizing big logs with hand hewn characteristics. Working with Brian through final design and construction, we were pleased that he was always available and patiently answered our numerous questions. Ever diligent to the smallest details and finish selections, we grew to rely on his experience as we faced many choices to complete the project. When we started the project we hoped the final product would be a place to enjoy extended family time. With Brian's big logs, stunning views, and attention to classic details it is all that and more, it is spectacular. We thank Brian and his team for helping us realize our dream, one that will delight many of our generations to come."
